THIRD SCHEDULE
(Made under section 14 (1))

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH THEMES

1. Crop Improvement
   (a) breeding for improved crop varieties;
   (b) develop recommendations for Good Agricultural Practices (GAP) under rain fed and irrigated farming;
   (c) collection, conservation and sustainable utilization of plant genetic resources; and
   (d) any other emerging issues.

2. Crop Protection:
   (a) integrated pest management;
   (b) integrated disease management;
   (c) weeds and invasive species management;
   (d) any other emerging issues.

3. Post-Harvest Research
   (a) handling;
   (b) processing;
   (c) packaging;
   (d) storage;
   (e) any other emerging issues.

4. Land use and water management
   (a) soil fertility, plant nutrition, conservation agriculture and erosion control;
   (b) soil mapping, land resources inventory and evaluation;
   (c) water conservation and water quality analysis;
   (d) efficient and sustainable irrigation technologies; and
   (e) any other emerging issues.
5. Agroforestry
   (a) screening of multipurpose trees species for suitability as fuel wood, fodder or for soil fertility improvement, border and shade;
   (b) developing sustainable management systems that incorporate trees and shrubs into crop/livestock systems;
   (c) genetic resources management, conservation and sustainable utilization of trees and shrubs;
   (d) any other emerging issues.

6. Environmental Management and Climate Change Resilience
   (a) development of new tools for risk-based agricultural planning and operational techniques to address less predictable weather patterns and potential shifts of agro-ecological zones;
   (b) research in loss of biodiversity due to over-exploitation;
   (c) development of measures to control pollution and degradation of natural resources;
   (d) development of varieties of different crops for climate change adaptation purposes;
   (e) research in agricultural technologies, techniques, and innovative adaptive measures appropriate to given agro-ecological zones;
   (f) any other emerging issues;
   (g) agro-climatology.

7. Biosciences and Biotechnology Innovations
   All emerging scientific innovation and technologies that enhance sustainable agricultural growth and development such as:
   (a) marker assisted breeding;
   (b) tissue culture;
   (c) genetic engineering;
   (d) biosafety research;
   (e) disease diagnostics;
   (f) bioinformatics;
   (g) genomics;
   (h) proteomics;
   (i) gene tilling;
   (j) metabolomics; and
   (k) any other emerging issues.

8. Socio-economics and Marketing Research
   (a) characterization and analysis of farming system and client groups to enhance research targeting;
   (b) technology transfer, adaptation and adoption by stakeholders;
(c) validation and up-scaling and out-scaling of agricultural indigenous knowledge, technologies and techniques;
(d) impact and research spillover studies of adapted and adopted technologies and return to research investment; including documentation and dissemination;
(e) entrepreneurship and farm enterprise development;
(f) analysis of institutional policy-induced constraints to technology development along the value-chain;
(g) research in factors that enhance competitiveness and marketability of Tanzanian agricultural produce in regional and international supply chains;
(h) impact studies of agricultural technologies on labor and gender relations;
(i) any other emerging issues.

9. Technology Transfer
(a) testing technologies with farmers (on-farm trials) in collaboration with extension agents;
(b) farmers field days at research institutes;
(c) farmer field schools;
(d) developing and executing communication strategies including print, audio, visual and electronic media;
(e) documentation and dissemination of agricultural research technologies to users;
(f) access and assessment of technologies in order to screen and adapt for dissemination; and
(g) any other emerging issues.

10. Agricultural Engineering
(a) collaborative research on testing farm implements and the use of animal power traction;
(b) processing technologies;
(c) screening for varieties that are adapted for mechanization;
(d) tillage systems/techniques;
(e) sustainable management of agricultural waste; and
(f) any other emerging issues.

11. Crosscutting Themes
(a) intellectual property management of developed research products and services;
(b) information management and development of integrated information/ict systems;
(c) formulation of research standards, codes of ethics, conduct and practice, and guidelines for delivery of agricultural research services;
(d) collaboration and linkages with local government authorities, national institutions, regional networks and international organizations dealing with and supporting agricultural research and development; the purpose being to conduct collaborative research and sharing knowledge, experiences, technologies and resources

(a) alternative sources of energy such as solar, biogas, wind and biofuel; and
(b) gender mainstreaming;
(c) any other emerging issues.
